[White-hot wonderland]

With icing-sugar white sand and clear turquoise waters, it's little wonder the unspoilt beaches of Zanzibar consistently rank in best-in-the-world lists. Among the best (and most fun to say) are Bwejuu, Pongwe and Kizimkazi.

ZURI ZANZIBAR

Tanzania

The lowdown Exciting design-led resort overlooking the azure Indian Ocean,
Best for Those longing for blissed-out relaxation in beach-shack-luxe surrounds.

Ever wondered what paradise looks like? Probably a lot like the silky white shores of Unguja, Zanzibar's idyllic spice island and home to brand-new resort Zuri Zanzibar. The design of this 13-acre estate has been carefully overseen by Jestico + Whites, the talented team behind projects such as One Aldwych in London and Switzerland's Villa Honegg. They've delivered a series of striking interiors that incorporate regional materials and traditional craftsmanship, elevating the typical Indian Ocean resort to stylish new heights. There are 55 bungalows, villas and suites, all boasting expansive terraces and outdoor showers, with the best allowing direct access down to the waterfront. Guests will thank the heavens for Zuri's private beach - think warm turquoise water set against a dramatic cliff backdrop. Oasis-like gardens packed with baobabs, ylang-ylang and fruit trees provide welcome respite from the hot African sun, while those who prefer to bask poolside will fall head over heels for the 32-metre infinity pool and its dedicated cocktail bar. There are several food and drink possibilities, from Upendo, the hotel's main restaurant that showcases an eclectic mix of African and Indian dishes, to the Dining by Design concept that creates bespoke experiences highlighting the resort's natural beauty.
